

— THE —
HUMAN
BATTERY
— PROJECT —

DIETARY GUIDELINES

ALL TIERS

Food is the load. It arrives after light has set the clock. Not before.

How we eat

Protein first. Fat for fuel. Vegetables for volume. Nothing from a package with more than one ingredient. No snacking. And a window, so the body gets hours every day with nothing to process.

Light before food

You do not eat until you have been outside. Morning light sets the clock. Food arrives after. Every tier, every day, no exceptions.

Protein at every meal

Build the plate around it. Sardines, eggs, beef, salmon, lamb, liver. The target is 1.6 to 2.2 grams per kilogram of bodyweight depending on your tier, and most people are well under it when they start.

Fat is the fuel

Extra virgin olive oil, grass-fed butter, tallow, ghee, avocado, the fat in the fish. Not seed oils. Not margarine. Not anything that says vegetable oil.

No snacks

Two or three meals inside your window. Nothing between them. This one rule does more than any other single change, because every snack restarts the insulin cycle and stops the body from ever getting to the work it does when it is not digesting.

The window closes early

Your tier sets the hours. Whatever they are, the last meal ends at least three hours before bed. Late eating runs the clock backward.

Water with minerals, not with food

Three liters a day with Baja Gold in every bottle. Most of it between meals, not during. The morning glass, with lemon, before anything else.

The daily list

Once your tier reaches it, these are in every day. They are the foundation the rest is built on.

Sardines	The most important food in the program. DHA, calcium, selenium, and almost no mercury. A tin a day. In olive oil, wild-caught, skin and bones on.
Pastured eggs	Choline, DHA, complete protein. Cooked in butter. Three or four.
Leafy greens	Kale, chard, arugula, romaine, spinach. A full bowl. Raw with olive oil or wilted in butter.
Fermented vegetable	Sauerkraut, kimchi. A forkful with a meal. Refrigerated, unpasteurized, nothing added.
Extra virgin olive oil	The fat that goes on everything. Cold-pressed, in a dark bottle, from a single origin.
Grass-fed butter	For cooking. Kerrygold is fine.
Baja Gold sea salt	Minerals, not just sodium. On food and in water.
Wild salmon	Four times a week minimum. Sockeye or coho. Frozen wild beats fresh farmed.
Cruciferous vegetables	Broccoli, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, cabbage. Two cups. Roasted in tallow or steamed with butter.
Avocado	Half to one a day. Potassium and fat.

Every week

Beef liver once. Bone broth twice. Grass-fed beef three times. Lamb once.

Approved foods

Protein

Sardines, wild salmon, mackerel, anchovies, oysters, grass-fed beef, lamb, bison, pastured chicken thigh, pastured eggs, beef liver, bone broth, wild game.

Vegetables

All leafy greens. Broccoli, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, bok choy. Asparagus, celery, cucumber, zucchini, green beans, artichoke, mushrooms, onion, garlic, leeks, radish, beets, carrots. Fermented: sauerkraut, kimchi, fermented pickles.

Fats

Extra virgin olive oil, grass-fed butter, ghee, tallow, avocado, avocado oil for high heat, coconut oil, olives, macadamia nuts, walnuts.

Fruit

Berries, especially blueberries and blackberries. Lemon and lime. Avocado. Seasonal fruit in small amounts, with a meal, never alone.

Starch, tier permitting

White rice, sweet potato, squash. Intermediate and Beginner only. Advanced and Pro run without starch.

Dairy, limited

Grass-fed butter and ghee for everyone. Aged hard cheese for Advanced, Intermediate and Beginner. No milk, no yogurt, no soft cheese.

Seasoning

Baja Gold. Black pepper. Fresh herbs. Ginger, turmeric, cinnamon. Apple cider vinegar. Mustard with no sugar. Coconut aminos.

Drinks

Mineral water. Coffee, black, before noon. Green tea. Herbal tea. Bone broth. Dragon Herbs Spring Dragon tea in the afternoon.

What is out, and why

Gluten	Wheat, barley, rye, and everything made from them. Bread, pasta, cereal, crackers, most sauces. Out for every tier. Beginner from week 9.
Seed oils	Canola, soybean, corn, sunflower, safflower, cottonseed, grapeseed, rice bran. Read every label. Out for every tier.
Added sugar	In every form and under every name. Out for every tier.
Alcohol	Out for ninety days. All of it.
Ultra-processed food	If it has more than one ingredient and came in a package, it is out.
Nightshades	Tomato, potato, pepper, eggplant, goji, paprika, cayenne. Out for Pro and Advanced. In for Intermediate and Beginner.
Grains and legumes	All grains including rice, and all beans, lentils, peanuts, soy. Out for Pro and Advanced. Intermediate and Beginner keep white rice and sweet potato.
Most dairy	Milk, cream, yogurt, soft cheese, ice cream. Out for every tier. Butter, ghee and aged hard cheese stay in as noted.

Your window and your exclusions

PRO

7am to 1pm. One 24-hour fast weekly. No grains, legumes, nightshades, starch, or dairy except butter and ghee.

ADVANCED

7am to 3pm. No grains, legumes, nightshades. Butter and aged cheese only.

INTERMEDIATE

8am to 5pm. White rice and sweet potato allowed. Nightshades in.

BEGINNER

No window in month one. 9am to 7pm in month two, tightening. Gluten and seed oils out from week 9. Everything else in.

Meal construction

The formula

Protein the size of your palm, or two palms for Pro and Advanced. Vegetables to fill half the plate. Fat over everything. Salt. For Intermediate and Beginner, one fist of starch at the midday meal.

Breakfast, the first meal

Sardines straight from the tin with lemon and olive oil, or eggs in butter. Greens on the side. A forkful of sauerkraut. This is the same meal most days and that is the point. Decision fatigue is how programs die.

The main meal

A large piece of animal protein cooked in tallow or butter. Two cups of vegetables. Avocado. Olive oil finish. Salt.

Eating out

Steak or fish, vegetables, no sauce, olive oil and lemon on the side. Ask what oil they cook in. If the answer is vegetable oil, order something grilled dry or choose another place.

Prep

Cook protein for three days at once. Wash and store greens. Keep tins of sardines everywhere. Keep boiled eggs in the fridge. The program fails on Tuesday at 6pm with nothing ready, and prep is the only answer to that.

The cookbook is built only from the approved list. Twenty recipes at launch, each one logs as a single tap in the portal.